

Celebrating 135 Years

We are thrilled to announce that Children & Families of Iowa (CFI) has reached another milestone in its long history of service to the people of Iowa. This year marks the 135th anniversary of CFI, and we are proud to have been a part of the community for so long.

Our humble beginnings date back to 1888, when a group of ministers and laypeople formed the Iowa Education Aid Association. Their goal was to find homes for homeless, abused, and neglected children in what were then called "childless homes." This rich history speaks to our enduring commitment to Iowa's children.

Throughout our long history, we have always been committed to strengthening families in order to prevent out-of-home placement of children if it is safe to do so. We do this by providing support to families in crisis, filling unmet needs, and developing new programs and advocacy initiatives to meet the changing needs of our community.

children & families of iowa

Over the last 135 years, our mission statement has remained the same, "Restoring hope, Building futures, Changing lives" one child, person, and family at a time. We are so grateful to the families and communities who have trusted us to provide quality, effective services.

Our ability to navigate the multiple system changes, economic crisis, and most recently, a pandemic, speaks volumes to the organization's resilience and commitment to children and families.

As we embark upon the next 100 years, our goal is threefold:

- Remain true to our mission
- Provide the highest quality services for children and families
- Advocate for those who need us most - children

We believe that by staying true to these core values, we can continue to make a difference in the lives of Iowa's children and families for generations to come.

1888

The lowa Educational Aid Society is founded. Three principles are adopted as a foundation for the society's work:

- 1. A family home is superior to an orphanage or other institution as a place to raise children.
- 2. There is a childless home for every homeless child.
- 3. An organization is needed as an intermediary between homeless children and childless homes.

This society evolves into the organization we know today as Children & Families of Iowa.

As a bright, young professional, Joleen* had high expectations. She sought love and respect in her personal life. When she found a partner who offered those key qualities, she dedicated herself to building their relationship and a home. The couple had a daughter together. When an opportunity in Des Moines came up, the young family relocated even though it was far away. Jolene was committed to tending to her new family and agreed to put her career on hold to stay home with their daughter while her partner's income would sustain them. Domestic abuse is subtle or nonexistent in the early stages of a relationship. The perpetrator often presents as charming and trustworthy. Thus, Joleen could not have prepared for what awaited her when she agreed to move far away from her support system. To keep Jolene under his full control, her partner created a situation whereby he could regularly assault Joleen with impunity. Jolene and her daughter were trapped and alone, dependent on him for basic needs like food, shelter, and transportation. Furthermore, the abuser threatened to harm their daughter if Joleen tried to leave.

Social isolation, economic dependence, and threats against the children are three of the strongest tools an abuser utilizes to maintain control.

Fortunately, Joleen figured out a way to participate in Children & Families of Iowa's educational and counseling programs for those who experience domestic violence. Over the course of a year, Jolene learned about the cycle of abuse, coping strategies, and options.

CFI helped Jolene to learn her legal rights in the state of lowa. Eventually, she made the brave decision to leave her partner and seek an order of protection while he was out of town. Unfortunately, the court was opposed to her course of action and encouraged her to speak with a civil attorney about custody before granting a protective order. While this initially left Joleen unsafe and feeling more helpless, CFI helped her process the best course of action. Joleen continued to work closely with CFI to receive medical, court, housing, and employment advocacy. When it was time for her and her daughter to escape the abuser, they moved into CFI's emergency shelter. Joleen participates in employment training and plans to move into her own apartment. Her goals are to be self-sufficient, live free of violence, and keep her daughter safe. And she wants to help others escape domestic violence.

Jolene is one person, but last year in lowa, 29,770 individuals were served by the Crime Victims Assistance Unit because of domestic violence assaults. The need is great, and CFI continues to provide services thanks to a broad base of community support.

Donor Appreciation

The Easter Family Foundation awarded CFI with a grant of $6,000 to support CFI's vulnerable families and children and provide access to the resources and opportunities they need to build a better future. CFI strives to improve the lives of individuals of all ages -- from infants to senior citizens. These individuals face many barriers to success -- such as poverty, unemployment, lack of food and housing, substance abuse, mental health problems, and many other challenges.

PricewaterhouseCoopers Charitable Foundation

awarded CFI with a grant of $25,000. The grant was awarded to support CFI's careers (S4C) program. S4C restores hope and purpose to individuals receiving Social Security Income (SSI) and Social Security Disability Income (SSDI) through the exploration and attainment of community-based jobs in their chosen career path. This funding allows those jobseekers to become better qualified and ready for success in careers they may have never considered or been exposed to.

West Bank awarded CFI with a grant of $5,500 to support CFI's general mission to restore hope, Build Futures, and change lives by providing services for the most emergent needs, such as domestic violence prevention and intervention, teen programs, family support, early childhood development, mental health, and substance abuse. West Bank is a long-time supporter of CFI.

summer tutoring program powered by CFI hosted the summer 2023 Jump Start tutoring program. The program provides enriching educational opportunities to students in Des Moines and surrounding areas. We strive to create an inclusive space, free of bias students while embracing cultural values and identity. Tutors assess for gaps in education and focus on achieving mastery in math and reading. Over 400 tutoring sessions were held for 182 students. 100% of the students made progress in math and/or reading, and 83% of students achieved mastery in math and/or reading.
